I am going to say in my own defense that I studiously refrained from telling you anything; I could not tell you much of anything, but I kept from trying to tell you anything with the expectation that I could listen and learn something. The result is that Colonel Symons and myself (both from Missouri, by the way) have done about all the talking, and to some extent I am disappointed. I am grateful to Colonel Symons. The President: I feel assured the gentlemen here present have been so entertained that they have not felt that they would like to stop the flow of eloquence and information that has been coming from Mr. Symons and yourself, and I want...
