Men do not form their opinions according to their political affiliations but form their political affiliations according to their opinions. Undoubtedly a few men form their political affiliations because of the party connections of their forefathers or because of the particular section of the country in which they live and then adopt the political opinions of that particular party without having carefully judged the merits of the party s principles. But that is true only in exceptional cases, and it is the general rule that men judge first of the merits of principles and make their party affiliations according to their best judgment of what will promote the welfare of the country. It is expected that this discussion will be partisan in its character. It is expected that the policies and principles of the Republican Party will be commended and the policies and record of the Democratic Party will be criticized. Some perhaps will attribute this attitude to purely partisan feeling and prejudice, but I trust that most of you will be considerate enough to believe that I am not...
