Both Congress and the Department of Defense (DOD) are concerned about the continuing trend toward noncompetitive DOD procurements. GAO studied opportunities for introducing competition in DOD procurements by analyzing a random sample of goods and services purchased by DOD agencies for the first time in fiscal year 1979 and studied the decision process which led to noncompetitive buying. GAO concluded that 25 of the 109 contracts in its sample had been inappropriately awarded noncompetitively. About 289 million of the noncompetitive procurements could have been competitive. Because of a lack of adequate statistical information, GAO could not determine how much could have been saved through additional competition. However, studies have shown that as much as 25 percent could be saved through increased competition. The primary reasons for the fiscal years 1972 to 1978 decline in price competitive spending as a percentage of the DOD procurement budget were: (1) increased spending on and a concurrent loss of competition for petroleum and nuclear submarines; (2) increased use of design and technical competition for major weapon systems; and (3) greater emphasis on set-asides for businesses...
